¶4. (U) BEGIN NOTIFICATION:

A network of land-, air-, sea- and spaced-based sensors confirms that the U.S. military intercepted a non-functioning National Reconnaissance Office satellite which was in its final orbits before entering the earth's atmosphere.

At approximately 10:26 p.m. EST on February 20 (0326 UTC on February 21), a U.S. Navy AEGIS warship, USS Lake Erie (CG-70), fired a single modified tactical Standard Missile-3 (SM-3) hitting the satellite approximately 247 kilometers (133 nautical miles) over the Pacific Ocean as it traveled in space at more than 17,000 miles per hour (27,400 kilometers per hour). USS Decatur (DDG-73) and USS Russell (DDG-59) are also part of the task force.

The objective was to rupture the fuel tank to dissipate the approximately 1,000 pounds (453 kilograms) of hydrazine, a hazardous fuel which could pose a danger to people on earth, before it entered into earth's atmosphere. Confirmation that the fuel tank has been fragmented should be available within 24 hours.

Due to the relatively low altitude of the satellite at the time of the engagement, debris will begin to re-enter the earth's atmosphere immediately. Nearly all of the debris will burn up on reentry within 24 to 48 hours and the remaining debris should re-enter within 40 days.

DoD will conduct a press briefing at 7:00 a.m. EST (1200 UTC) on February 21 to provide further information related to the operation. The briefing can be viewed live on www.Defenselink.com.

END NOTIFICATION.
